DARE TO BUILD THE FUTURE

Craft professionals work hard and have the skills to show it. Their drive, knowledge and skills can take them all the way to the top – from entry-level to CEO.

The possibilities are nearly limitless.

7/10 jobs in the U.S. job market require less than a four-year degree.

Construction jobs range from welders and electricians to drone pilots and project managers.

The average craft professional makes almost $10,000 more per year than a recent college graduate.

Technology and innovation are booming within the construction industry.

Craft professionals have skills that give them the freedom to travel.

BUILD THE FUTURE

“Construction has helped me build my life in many ways. I take pride in being independent in every aspect of my life and construction has afforded me in that opportunity.”

– Holley Thomas, Project Principal
Quality Inspector

“As a plumbing apprentice, I was able to purchase my dream home and I’ve gotten out of my student loan debt. I like that I work with my hands, learn as I go and see things on paper come to fruition.”

– Daniel Moralobo, Plumbing Apprentice

“At the beginning of high school, I really didn’t know what I wanted to do. I’m glad I stayed with masonry, because it was like the first stepping stone of something great.”
